Comments: Please do not allow ebikes access to more of the land managed by the national forest service designated as wilderness. Wilderness is not meant to be easily accessible because it is rugged, remote, natural. Wilderness and nature are a source of spiritual, physical and emotional renewal for many people. There are hundreded of studies by professional organizations and academic centers about the benefits of being in the wilderness or nature upon the mental/emotional/physical health of people especially people with trauma. Ebikes can disrupt the benefits of being in the wilderness or nature due to their noise, any special accommodations made to trails and trailheads. I am not opposed to biking in nature/forest/parks especially since there are trails of different lengths cyclist (using their own power) can use within their abilities.
