Comments: I have been a mountain biker since I was 16. I am happy that e-bikes have expanded the market and that more people are using them and getting outside, however, I also love to be out in the woods alone. There is something about working for an end goal, and the solitude that is a reward for the effort. I think that e-bikes should be allowed on certain trails but not others, both to preserve that "wilderness" experience as well as limit overcrowding and stressing of wildlife.
