Comments: To whom it may concern, eMTB's have a motor are are therefore a motorized use case. I see no reason to consider them as non-motorized. As an old timer in the mountain bike world, I remember many trails being closed to us at the dawn of MTB riding in the late 80's and early 90's. Adding motorized mountain bikes to the mix seems way too risky to the precious access we've fought for and maintained. Perception by hikers of eMTB's buzzing past them climbing will most likely not be good and would add fuel to the argument banning all bikes from trails.

Thanks,

Dave Stewart
