Comments: Many of us still enjoy the solitude of horseback riding in the wilderness. We expect to LNT, pack it in pack it out attitude. We also expect to be safe on the trails from dirt bikes, ebikes, the rip roar of some bike rider bounding over the hills and terrain at speeds which make it difficult for the bike rider to stop or the horse to get out of the way. Our horses do not need groomed trails, roots cut out, rocks or boulders removed, or blow downs tore out. If 40% of the trails have been opened for dirt bikes, mountain bikes and ebikes, that's enough, leave something for equestrians, trail riders, cowboys, Mustang training. If you continue to cater to the city dwellers, there will be nothing left of the wilderness, but forest fires.
