Comments: I am a horse back rider primarily. I do walk on trails and occasionally bike. I rode my friends EBike several times in the city. I thought I would be openminded to Ebikes on trails but I really don't think that anymore, the reason is they do get going too fast. I've been almost hit head on twice by bikers flying around corners. Also part of the problem and a Big one, is lots of the bikers can't hear the oncoming Trail users because they have EAR BUDS on and are also looking down at the trail. Some bikers ring their bells while approaching from behind, which I usually don't hear (I'm facing forward and wearing a helmet) so hollering out like one does on the ski slopes is better. Some bikers just fly by close to horses, not realizing horses can kick out sideways. Can there be bikes only and horses only trails? Thanks
