Comments: I believe allowing e-bikes on non-motorized trails is a mistake. Allowing e-bikes will increase traffic and trash, damage trails, and put hikers and horseback riders at risk. It opens the door to motorbikes, then ATVs. Already, there are groups "for balanced use" that are pushing for more and more access and to increase the number of motorized trails. Once these wild places are gone, they are gone forever. The number of places one can hike or ride a horse without the thrum of an engine grows vanishingly small. Things are going to change very fast within the next few years when it comes to public lands and on this matter we cannot move an inch. There is no coming back from it.
