Comments: I would like to write to you today to object to opening more trails to e-bikes. While I have an ebike, and use it to transport myself and my family on urban bike paths, I do think that they are appropriate on forest trails. E-bikes are too fast and would startle hikers and mountain bikers. And to be honest, e-bikes are looked at by mountain bikers as "cheating". If you can't power yourself up the trail on your bike then maybe you shouldn't be there? Or course, that's not equitable, it's an elitist attitude held by mountain bikers - but it's an honest feeling none the less. Elitism aside, e-bikes are not appropriate on forest trails, they make more sense and fit in better on urban and suburban paths.
