

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 10/26/2020 10:13:05 AM

First name: Kristi

Last name: Parsons

Organization:

Title:

Comments: I have ridden trails on horseback for many years and have shared many of those trails with bicycles. Most who bike on the trails are courteous and obey the rules, allowing horses and hikers to pass, but there are occasional bicyclists that don't adhere to the rules and cause horses to startle and spook, making it very dangerous for all involved. If you add in the factor of increased speeds that e-bikes can achieve, you are only adding to the danger involved for both horseback riders and foot hikers. There is a place for e-bikes, but that place is not on multi-use trails.