Comments: Horses can spook from anything. Even well trained and experienced horses can spook and their instinct is to get away from things they spook from. Riders can be thrown to the ground and possibly trampled, or be knocked off or injured when the panicked horse runs off the trail and under low branches. Even very experienced riders can have difficulty getting a panicked horse back under control. E-bikes need and deserve a place to enjoy themselves, but they, too, could be injured or killed by a panicked horse that's out of control. The answer is not to put horses and any other vehicle, including e-bikes, on the same trail.
