Comments: I guess you're calling these "e bikes", wherein of course the "e" stands for electric. That being the case, they are definitely a MOTORIZED VEHICLE. If an electric bicycle does not have a motor, then you tell me what it does have?

You're just trying to get around the truth by calling them "e bikes", but anyone with a brain can see that. Other than the noise emitted by a gasoline powered ENGINE, they have the same issues on a trail that any other gas powered cycle does.

What we need are places where it's foot travel only, via boots on the ground or equine travel. They already have enough trails.
