Comments: Recently, riding a horse on a trail designated for foot, horse and bicycle use, I encountered bike riders who had no regard for their or my safety, riding recklessly without considering the shared nature of the trail. I see no reason to restrict the use of E-bikes on such trails as they are severely compromised by regular bike riders already. E-bikes and regular bikes should not be permitted in Wilderness areas and trail access should not be expanded for them on National Forest lands in the future.
