Comments: "More than 60,000 miles of trails (nearly 40% of all trails) and thousands more miles of roads are open to all classes of e-bikes on our National Forests and Grasslands." That is more than enough. Some of these riders (I've seen them go off trail) have no respect for the land that has been opened to them & create their own trails. This, as you are aware, becomes a problem for the natural process of the land. I'm not saying all bike riders do this but enough for them to make an impact on the land that is open for it to take thousands of years to recover. Please reconsider the opening of these trails. Bikers already have plenty & do not need more.
