Comments: To Whom It May Concern,

I am OPPOSED to opening up non-motorized trails to e-bikes. If a rider isn't capable of riding the trail without electric assist, then they shouldn't be on the trail. E-bikes run the risk of increased trail wear and are otherwise incompatible with wise, long term trail management. There is also the concern about modifications to e-bikes increasing their speeds and making bike vs human or equine contact more dangerous. This is simply not a good idea.
