Comments: There are too many safety issues to allow for e-bikes in wilderness areas. The chance of people getting in over their heads is too great. Since the market for these types of bikes are focussed on those that may need assistance, suffice it to say conditions in the wilderness areas are already challenging enough. The lack of regulation on e-bikes is also very concerning as people have been known to override the governors on them to increase speed.

Wilderness is a far cry from groomed trails.

I do not want to see someone hurt or worse because they thought their e-bike could keep them out of trouble in the sticks.

No e-bikes in Wilderness areas.
