Comments: The Question I ask is what will ebikes look like in 5 years? 10 years?

Will they have morphed into an electric motorcycle with pedals?

Currently power is increasing, batteries getting stronger, user demographic getting younger. Bike companies need new products to sell to keep the profit level up so ebikes will advance, probably faster than regulations.

Regulations set for current ebikes won't work for the next wave. Who will enforce regulations? Who will know the power level of the ebike they are looking at?

I believe ebikes could be allowed to go wherever motorcycles are allowed but nowhere only bicycles are allowed on public land. Then who is regulating?

Not an easy problem to solve. Best of Luck
