Comments: I think that there should be dedicated areas and trails for bikes, and the same for equestrians. Multi-purpose trails are a great idea, in principle, but, unfortunately, there is too much entitlement in the bike community, which winds up translating into abuse of the equestrian community. And when there are parking and camping areas, and staging areas dedicated to equestrians, they need to be reserved for equestrians, because equestrians don't have the luxury of parking and staging in other areas, do to space constraints. There's already camping areas on federal lands that have set up for horses, that are being usurped by hikers and campers, so that equestrians don't have access to corrals and camping areas.
