Comments: As a life long equestrian I have enjoyed riding trails for 40 years. During my time riding the trails I have had many encounters with people riding bikes. The majority follow trail rules and act accordingly. However, there are also the ones who ride as fast as they can around blind corners. I had one bike actually crash into my horse because they were going so fast they couldn't stop.

Ebikes can go even faster than a normal bike, many of the people who will be using these bikes will be new to having a bike with a motor. They will be going too fast on terrain they are not used to. Leading to horrible crashes.

The forest is just that a forest. It's not for anything with a motor. We have such few places left that aren't ruined by modern technology.
