Comments: I don't believe all trails should be open or shared with e-bikes. Some trails could be shared with proper safety training and enforced speed limits for bikes. It also helps to make some trails one-way only. And some trails can be made horse/hiker only or bike only. Careful planning can make trails available to each class of enthusiasts. Personally, I don't mind sharing trails as long as all parties are considerate. My horse has gotten used to seeing bikes and does not spook or startle as long as she's not taken by surprise. Blind areas are always a challenge.
