Comments: This action will jeopardize the sustainable, recreation/tourism-based economy of central idaho for the foreign short-term-interests of a mining company and that the mining company, Midas, will likely declare bankruptcy before the cleanup stage of the project. This leaves the taxpayers footing the giant bill for the giant cleanup of the open-pit mines. and one more - the proposed site is crucial, chinook salmon, steelhead and bull trout spawning habitat. The latter two are protected with a "threatened" status under the endangered species act
