Comments: The project being proposed here is a large undertaking. It will have far reaching and long lasting effects regardless of how it is executed. For that reason alone, it is not a decision we should make lightly or rush through the process.

I would advocate for an extension of the comment period first and foremost. Citizens should have the utmost time and knowledge before moving onto the objection period. Second, if such is not considered or is not provided for, it seems prudent that the project not go forward. At this point in time, I do not feel that enough info/opportunity to be heard has been provided. In light of that, going forward would be ignorant. We are unsure how this project will affect everyone; our ecosystems, our landscape, and our local economies (long-term). Proceeding at this point is not a decision I would support.
