Comments: As an Idaho guide on it's wild river for six years, I have grown respect the rivers and acknowledge our impact on the rivers we love. The South Fork of the Salmon is the definition of a extreme high quality high alpine free flowing river. These rivers represent unique habitats for delicate ecosystems. The health of the entire heart of Idaho is at risk by putting in any projects whatsoever in this Area. The South Fork of the Salmon should be considered a protected and sacred river system because of its healthy ecosystem that is fragile and should be preserved. NO to the Stibnite Gold Project. Get them out of Idaho
