Comments: This letter strongly supports the approval of the Stibnite Gold Project in Idaho. With the recent enthusiasm for 0 carbon vehicles and such, we must mine the materials we need at home, or risk turning into a Colonial shell of a country. The NFS has turned itself into a park for the most part and abandoned its mission to provide resources to the populace. This project is a chance to return this part of Idaho back to normalcy. Of course, nobody at the NFS knows what a mine is or even what a chain saw does, but maybe this will allow a new generation to learn a few things about reality and balance use. After reading the docs, I'd say alternative 2 is the best option. May we finally strike down the Wild Earth Guardians, Center for Biological Diversity, and Earth Justice which are just NIMBY organizations in disguise. Shame on NFS for allowing them to drown out normal people in the country.
