Comments: Hello,

Thecommend period for this decision for must be extended to allow for due public scrutiny of the plan by the myriad of public interest holders beyond greedy, polluting gold mining organizations. The nez Pearce should be the first and final word on a plan to catastrophically alter their ancestral lands, and if their word is not enough, the word of thousands of citizens interested in the protection of the Salmon and surrounding wilderness should stay your hand. With adequate time to review the process, any arbitrating body would recognize that the environmental, cultural, and historical legacy of this river is worth infinitely more than a favor for wealthy gold miners.
