Comments: U.S.F.S. Officials,

I am a conservationist at heart and a geologist by training. Aside from the jobs created and the lift the project will give to the local economy, the company's plan to reclaim the disastrous detritus of past mining operations if properly executed will be a boon to the concept of conservation. Midas Gold is unlikely to make it worse and given the number of Federal agencies with enforcement power that are involved, it's hard to envision the project going too far sideways before it would get shut down.
