Comments: The south salmon is a pristine river I personally am hoping to experience this coming summer and years after that, A clean river such as the south salmon is extremely valuable to the vegetation and animals that depend on that river, clean water rivers are incredibly valuable for the outdoor recreation purposes people enjoy using, to hear a mine project is being put in at the headwaters is concerning, my concern is that this company may not be assessing the damage it would cause to this ecosystem correctly, or they don't value it properly, Is this pristine environment really worth some billion dollars if it will never be same? Myself and many others who will use this river in the future cherish it's pristine nature, and I fear I may never get to see it in its pristine state
