Comments: To whom it may concern,

My friends and I took an Instagram picture earlier this month. We are sitting on top of my friend Nicks car all dressed up and holding cups of grape juice that we are pretending is wine. We look happy and like we are taking our very selves to seriously. All things considered it is a cute picture and a fun covid safe way to spend the night. I am exited to look back on it latter in life. When we where bairn storming captions we went though a couple terrible idea before landing on what I though was a decent one. It is ok to be a gold bigger but not on native lands #nostibnitmine.

I know an Instagram post is the bare minimum of activism but I truly hope this mine dose not happen. It is an environmental risk and another example of Native Americans being mistreated and forced into a inhuman kind of displacement.

Please reconsider this mine,
Petra
