Comments: First, I do want to thank you for providing me a print copy of the Draft EIS last month. It is my understanding that others have not been able to access a print copy and I have been doing my best to pass it around to those who have poor internet and therefore difficulty accessing the DEIS electronically. As a result of sharing the one print copy that I know of, I've been trying to read the DEIS on my computer. It's been an incredibly frustrating process. For example, I can pull up some chapters from the DEIS, while other links consistently won't work. In particular, I have not been able to access Ch. 4 of the DEIS electronically, nor have I been able to access Appendix N on Recreation.

I am a teacher and I am raising a young family. I have limited amounts of time, 4-6 AM, that I can actually focus on and try to make sense of the DEIS, if I'm not trying to prepare lesson plans or comment on students' work.

If a link is broken, I don't have ample time to try and figure it out. My point is, access to the DEIS should be easier than it's been. I would be so grateful for a comment extension to the full 120 days so that I and many others can complete comments in a more meaningful and comprehensive way.
