Comments: I do believe in the benefits of prescribed burns BUT I hate to see areas that take many many years to evolve into their prime ecology torched just to do burns. An example is up by Lava Beds National Monument. I also sincerely believe that Far too MANY Prescribed Burns get OUT OF CONTROL and rage for days covering many thousands of acres. Often destroying many homes and properties. A hint on that would be the Washoe Valley Fire of recent times or the several PB's that got out of control up in the Trinity National Forest. Then as always the USFS says OOOPS and then has to pay for the damages they did beyond the proposed area as well as the additional monetary costs from a bigger than expected fire. So I know that what I have said means little to USFS but when the FIRE HITS THE FAN!!! you might understand my concerns. Thanks fro your time and asking for my input.
