

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 1/2/2021 6:04:22 AM

First name: steve

Last name: bishop

Organization:

Title:

Comments: Managing these utility corridors is essential. Removing excess vegetation has no noticeable quantitative or qualitative detrimental effects on the forests overall. I support leaving these corridors open and devoid of trees, vines, and highly combustible plant material. This management practice not only allows efficient access to utility maintenance personnel, but acts as an open area for unimpeded bird and wildlife movement, and serves as a break for wildfire control.