Comments: Once again, the "bad apples" have determined the law. I love to shoot, I do it occasionally in the national forest, I clean up completely - you'd never know I was there, but I NEVER EVER go to the gun ranges because I'm not safe there. Now you're going to prohibit legal, safe, clean use of the national forest because a bunch of disgusting and dirty gun toting jerks think it's just fine to abuse the national forest. I'm all for the building of gun ranges for those people. I don't want be around them and I am not safe around those people. Are you going to have days set aside for non-traditional folks to shoot without being hassled? different races perhaps? because anyone who doesn't fit in with the typical shooting right wing male is in danger of being heckled and possibly assaulted (or followed and assaulted elsewhere). I love the idea of building ranges, I object to the closure of rest of the national forest area for shooting. Please consider lessening the amount of restricted area.
