Comments: I'm an avid mountain biker and come across people shooting in my direction a fair amount. One came very close to our group and when we approached the shooter, he said that he knows what he's doing, he has his gun safety certificate and laughed.

I believe that it's best for there to be very specific areas for people to target shoot, I don't have any issues with people owning guns and practicing - it's better than someone owning a gun and never learning how to use it safely, but the destruction and mess left by random target practice throughout the area - it makes our beautiful landscape look like a trailer park from East Texas.
