Comments: I live in the area and have used that shooting area in the past with members of my family. Each time we have gone there were more people there than the place could handle. This is now happening frequently. I find most people to be responsible but a few are not. The last time I was there someone was shooting an automatic weapon up the hill from us. That made us uncomfortable.

My suggestion is to find an older retired person to supervise the area. Such a person could check people in, assign a site, make sure the site is properly cleaned and taken care of, sell targets, etc. A small fee could be collected that would pay for that person's involvement. That would solve 99% of your problems there. No one would be able to shoot anything but a proper target. No one would be able to leave trash behind. The gate to the area could be locked outside regular hours (e.g. 9:00 am to 5:00 pm etc. to keep people from vandalizing the area. My guess is that there are a lot of older retired people living in the area that would love such a job.
