Comments: As an avid mountain biker, hiker and target shooter, I believe that shooting should continue to be allowed in national forests. People like myself enjoy hiking out to remote locations to camp and shoot. I do also acknowledge that there are problems. I believe that those problems are not from folks like myself, but rather with irresponsible shooters. I think many of those problems could be addressed by providing convenient access to designated shooting areas. I would also support restricted shooting near trailheads, roads, and trails. This would force casual shooters into the designated areas while allowing users like myself and others to continue enjoying responsible shooting in the backcountry.
