Comments: I do not see how a few people camping dispersed for a weekend cause any of the impacts you state in these proposals verses the almost always full pay-campgrounds that you already herd everyone into. What you are doing to our forests are making every activity illegal instead of funding for improvement projects to existing areas and providing personnel to ensure non-destructive use of these areas. If the demographics of users has changed (homeless vs recreation) causing these issues which I see also, then you need to deal with this in a different way than outright banning tax payers who pay for your pittance funding. Banning the tax payer from use of our National Forest will only increase less voting for your funding survival. If we can't use it, why fund it?
