Comments: I frequently shoot in the hayman burn area and often pack out broken TV's, shotgun hulls/shells, all sorts of cases, wasted targets, and on time even a punching bag used for target practice. I love shooting, particularly in areas where I can stretch the range of my rifle safely out a mile or more in some cases, but it also means sharing the land with folks who do not respect it and this inquiry is a direct result of the shooting "community" not being good stewards of the land. I support protecting our wild spaces by closing some areas to shooting by heavily restricting established areas in such away as has been done recently in the hayman burn. I also strongly support and would lend whatever assistance I can necessary to create a public range where long distance shooters can go to safely practice the sport.
