Comments: Alaska Roadless Rulemaking #54511

We the people, alongside the native people of the Tongass forest urge you to reconsider the destruction of this crucial area for fleeting profit. We must find sustainable ways to thrive, not squander the few life sustaining resources we have left. The world is headed towards becoming an unlivable place within my life time. Please do not put a price on the current lives of the indigenous people whose lives will be destroyed by this irresponsible logging and deforestation or on the lives of those who will and already have died as a result of the climate crisis. There is no price on the survival of this planet, but make no mistake that is what you're selling.

Please care about your children,

Seanna
