

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 2/27/2021 5:49:02 PM

First name: Tom

Last name: Tracey

Organization:

Title:

Comments:

Dear Kara Chadwick,

As you know, countless hours have been applied by volunteers to make the Boggy Draw area an attraction for mountain bikers from around the country. The San Juan National Forest is 1,879,680 acres. I must ask, with this national forest being so big, it is really necessary to harvest timber in the Boggy Draw area? Seems to me, that you could go elsewhere in the your forest in search of suitable ponderosa pine stands to harvest.

Sincerely,

Tom Tracey

===