Comments: This proposal is an unnecessary expansion. Please wait for the full environmental analysis regarding protected species such as lynx and trout. It seems unwise to disturb this upstream wildlife habitat after spending years working to promote these species' viability.

Purgatory ski resort could definitely use some new and/or repaired infrastructure, but this lift is not the correct approach. It will be lightly used, create very little (4 short runs only) new skiable terrain while at the same time necessitating a great deal of habitat destruction during the construction and maintenance phases. This lift would also degrade the summertime experience for users.

After reviewing the comments it is notable that (with very few exceptions) the ONLY positive comments are from corporations that will benefit financially from an expansion at Purgatory. The remainder of comments focus mostly on costs to wildlife and the unnecessary nature of this "improvement". There are a variety of ways that Purgatory ski resort should be improved for the user experience while still being environmentally sensitive. This is not one of the ways to improve.
