Comments: While a coaster down the mountain sounds fun and sounds like a boost in economic activity, especially for the failing ski hill which it is certainly intended to rescue, I do believe that substantially increasing the amount of automobile traffic up mountain is completely irresponsible. Any decision that intentionally leads to more cars and people than there already are, especially in the numbers of 10-30,000, traveling up the scenic highway is not prioritizing the forest, its wildlife, or its residents, and is not taking seriously what surely would represent an elevated forest fire risk in the Sandias, which are already in serious danger. I am wholeheartedly against this project
