Comments: I love roller coasters, but this idea is preposterous and lays a very dangerous precedent to key natural features in New Mexico and beyond. There is already a thriving tourist attraction at the top of Sandia. If an investment must be made, invest in the tram and reignite interest around it. This roller coaster will not drive the tourism expected, will need constant costly repairs and maintenance and will destroy the land around it. New Mexico has always cherished it's natural wonders and THIS is why people are driven to visit our state, not for flash-in-the-Pan roller coasters in which interest will dwindle after so few years. Need I remind you of "the Beach water park?" This is possibly the worst idea I've ever heard proposed to help NM financially. Please come to your senses.
