Comments: To Whom It May Concern,

Really? A roller coaster? This seems like one of the most terrible ideas imaginable. It seemed like a huge environmental, capacity, and materials burden just to remodel the restaurant on top of Sandia Peak, now you want to build a roller coaster up there as well? You'd get more bang for your buck developing infrastructure like roads, hiking trails and what not than a roller coaster. Not to mention negative implications on the ecosystems in place and dishonoring the indigenous heritage of this land. Proper surveyors, project developers and planners would have coordinated a dialogue with Sandia Pueblo and the City of Albuquerque to decide on what to do with the money spent on this project. Pretty shameful decision. I won't be going on that roller coaster. My family won't be going on it, and none of my friends or their families will either. I'm letting you know now it's a waste of money, time and resources. Please reconsider investing in anything other than this.
