Comments: A roller coaster in the Sandias destroys a sacred site for a vain and short term gain. The Sandia Mountains are integral to Pueblo belief and practices in the region, for the sake of the cultural and religious practitioners that rely on the region, their right to practice their religion should be valued over this project. More importantly, preserving the environment and the land for wildlife is more important than a roller coaster. Cheap thrills can be achieved elsewhere, the Sandias only exist there and their environmental and cultural integrity should be preserved.
