Comments: Hello/to whom it may concern,

What would it feel like if your sacred lands were taken and taken and taken in various ways. I stand in solidarity with the Sandia Pueblo as this is their sacred lands. Profit may seem nice but at what cost. Their lands were taken, made recreational isn't that enough. No it's never enough.

We need more. We need more things to do, more ways to circulate profits and fake joy.

What about the joy of the trees, of the animals of the sacredness of the lands alone.

What is solution? Don't build the rollercoaster. Don't hurt the land more with foot traffic and pollution.

You will read what you want to read. Know that there's more of us who don't want it to be built than those who do and we will make our voices heard. Thanks for the public space to speak. To voice what is true for the land who can't speak in your native tongue. The land doesn't want more to be built on it.
