Comments: To whom it may concern,

I grew up in the mountains of New Mexico and still call it home. My entire family and most of my friends still live in New Mexico and I was so saddened to read about this project. There is no man-made object that could add anything to the natural landscape that are the mountains. As society grows and grows there remain far fewer things that are untouched by humans and it is so important to leave the sacred spaces in tact. Please reconsider the mountain coaster.
