Comments: I disagree with the idea that spending money, shutting down the current recreational area, and significantly disturbing the natural environment with additional man-made obstacles would be more economical or beneficial than fully utilizing current infrastructure or improving the current ski lifts to accommodate downhill bikers. Currently the only option is to ride across the crest from various trailheads to the 10k or ski area singletrack, then shuttle back to the origin point. Parking currently exists at the base, and with poor snow quantity and quality limiting ski/snowboard operations, adding year-round biking would draw outdoor enthusiasts from around the country and even within NM (areas like Questa/Winsor trail/Ruidoso), and would allow the restaurant to have more steady business from both sides of the Sandias.
