Comments: A coaster atop the Sandias is unnecessary and detrimental to the ecosystem and wildlife where it would be built. There is an abundance of outdoor recreational opportunities here- 150+ miles of hiking trails, mountain biking, downhill and cross-country skiing, scenic driving, picnicking, views at the top, the Tram, snowshoeing, etc. These activities, the views, the national forest and wilderness land so close to Albuquerque, the wildlife watching, and more bring in thousands of people a year. A coaster is not needed, and it would disrupt the experience of enjoying nature as it is now. I have done a lot of exploring and working in the Sandias, and I hope that this coaster will be decided against.
