Comments: I would rather the funds was appropriated for upgrading and maintaining the existing infrastructure. The roller-coaster would only be operational in warm weather ( who would want to ride in <40 and/or with snow?), and seems redundant with the existing chair-lift. Which is in dire need of improvements. I have not seen any evidence that the coaster would provide enough additional funds to foster it's own maintenance costs.

I believe the lift would be low impact once built since it could be low-elevation among the trees and remote enough to not be a noise pollutant, but I don't see a demand for this attraction. Especially in the mountain, maybe fund some roller-coasters at Cliff's amusement park instead.
