

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 3/31/2021 6:19:29 PM

First name: Tobin

Last name: Booth

Organization:

Title:

Comments: This area has already been ravaged by logging 100 years ago and needs to be left alone once and for all. The North slopes of Mount Baker are special wilderness that provides habitat for bears, deer, foxes, cougar, lynx, porcupine, and other solitary creatures. In addition, the 5 types of salmon which run in the Nooksack River and Glacier Creek and Canyon Creek will be harmed by runoff from "vegetation management" and logging in the region. The best vegetation management is no vegetation management as detailed by Aldo Leopold in the Sand County Almanac. Please do not proceed with any further destructive human intervention in the North Fork Nooksack area of Whatcom County, Washington.