Comments: I think it's absurd that this is even being considered. A roller coaster through the mountains? The forest service has an obligation to protect our natural habitats and protected lands and the environmental impact of this project alone should be enough to immediately disapprove of this project. The increase in the amount of vehicles that would be traveling to see this coaster could have a hugely negative affect on wildlife, air and water quality, and that's not even considering the damage that building upon and gentrifying these lands could have on the native population of the Sandias who consider this mountain sacred. It's 2021, can we stop taking sacred native land and exploiting it?
