Cattle and sheep on public lands are destructive. They provide the excuse to kill coyotes, cougars and wolves. The animals degrade streams and drinking pools that need to be there for wildlife.

Every grazing allotment should be retired. As climate change endangers many species we need to consider setting aside more and more lands in order to ensure the survival of ecosystem that are otherwise endangered by cattle and sheep.

Under no circumstances should grazing allotments be increased. I am one voice for our wildlife and invoice against the use of public lands for the benefit of ranchers.
